Subject: Why I Want To Pose in Your Breast Cancer Book

James:

When someone asks me why I chose to be represented in this breast cancer prevention book, I say it is because so many women suffer in silence and shame feeling less than a woman, alone and in a world of doubt.

I have people, who are and were very close to me that went through all of the emotional turmoil, physical suffering, isolation and doubt about whether they would ever be or feel sensual and like a woman again, wondering if they would survive the cancer, or will it come back and fearing their significant other will not feel the same about them.

For those who are single an entirely separate set of issues arise, which adds another layer of fear and doubt.

I also went through the questioning, fear and some emotional turmoil when I had my breast cancer scare, so I understand from a personal perspective why a book like this would be so important.

It is my hope that this book will help to desexualize breast cancer, and bring about more healthy, open support for people, who develop breast cancer and have to go through the treatment and healing process. I also hope it helps make it easier for women to seek medical help sooner, since cure rates are far greater the earlier cancer is detected.

I do have great hopes for the effects of this book, and that is the sum of why I want to be presented in it.
